SON OF THE LATE GEORGE VAN ETTA MARRIED TUESDAY?

James Van Etti of Chicago and Miss Laura M. Paul of Milton Junction Reported Wedded in Rockford Yesterday.

James Van Etti, son of the late George Van Etti, formerly of this city, and Laura M. Paul of Milton Junction, drove to this city yesterday afternoon and from here took a car over the Rockford for Rockford, with the intention of securing a marriage license and being married immediately. Young Van Etti is nineteen years of age and his bride is one year younger. The wedding will be a complete surprise to the many friends of the young people, although the parents of Miss Paul and the guardian of the young man were aware of their intention.

The wedding is the culmination of a romantic love affair which had its inception in Milton Junction just five months ago. Young Van Etti, while visiting in the Junction, met his bride for the first time there, although he had seen her on previous visits to the village. It was a case of love at first sight and the match progressed rapidly. The young man took up his residence near Milton Junction and purchased a horse and to the visit at the home of the bride, which is situated about three miles west of Milton Junction. It was originally intended that they should be married next year, but last Saturday a change in the plans was made and it was decided to hold the wedding immediately. Monday being a legal holiday it was necessary to postpone the ceremony until yesterday. The bride has not yet completed her course in the Milton Junction high school and would have graduated with the senior class next June had she returned to her studies.

The groom is the son of wealthy parents and worth nearly a million in his own right. George G. Sutherland of this city is his guardian. The young man's father, the late George Van Etti made his home in this city for many years, residing in a house on South Main street where the public library now stands. His mother and step-father reside in Chicago. The bride is a pretty, vivacious girl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Paul, well-to-do people, who reside on a farm near Milton Junction. The couple have gone to Chicago on their wedding tour and will remain there about two weeks. They expect to return to the home of the bride's parents and shortly after plan to leave for a tour of Europe to spend about a year and a half on the continent.

LAWMAKERS OF NEW YORK STATE MEET

Legislature Reassembled Today to Consider Reapportionment and Proposed New Charter for New York City.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The New York legislature reassembled today to consider the subjects of congressional reapportionment and the proposed new charter for New York City. The subject of the charter is the one in which most interest is manifested. Whether the Tammany influence can muster enough votes among the independent democrats to put the measure through is a matter of much speculation. The republican members of the assembly are believed to be solidly opposed to it. The legislature will take the action necessary for the reapportionment of the state into 43 congressional districts. There are now 37 districts, represented by 15 republicans and 22 democrats. The ratio of population under the present apportionment averaged 196,492. That under the new apportionment will be 211,944.

SECOND DAY CROWD WAS ENTHUSIASTIC

COLD WEATHER DOES NOT HINDER THROGS OF MERRY MAKERS.

ENJOYED THE EXHIBITS

Improvements at the Grounds and Fine Stock Prove Attractions Not to Be Relisted.

Beloit, Wis., Sept. 6.—Despite the cool day the second day of the county fair was most successful.

In the races this afternoon, Al Ken, owned by James Heplurn of Edgerton, won the 230 pace in 2:20. Herbert Oh-Sa, owned by N. Kelley of Albion, came in first in the 235 trot; time, 2:27.

Monroe defeated Stoughton 5 to 4 in the baseball game this morning. Tomorrow the Janesville Cubs will play Albany and the winner of this game will meet Monroe on Friday.

Live Stock.

The exhibition of live stock is most complete and the entries in each class are excellent animals. The total number of cattle entered is 265 and the stalls are all full. The hog and sheep pens are also filled and temporary accommodations were necessary for the late arrivals. Nearly all the entries had arrived at the grounds yesterday morning and the judging of the live stock as well as the judging in other departments began today.

Fine Fruit Exhibit.

One of the best exhibits on the grounds is to be found in the fruit tent where the choicest offerings of the season are most attractively displayed. There is an unusually fine exhibit in apples of all varieties which rival in beauty the choicest of the product which comes from Western states. Grapes, plums and pears from Rock county orchards and vineyards are also found in abundance and in superior quality.

Fine Art Display.

At the art building beautiful needle work of all descriptions is most attractively exhibited and an excellent line of pastries and cooking is found in this department. The exhibit of the work of the Evansville schools is one of the best displays here, and includes every manner of work from the kindergarten through the high school. Maps of the state and county, drawings and paintings, needle arts, baskets and other articles of products, and other interesting results of school work, make up an exhibition worthy of special mention. In the art building the Grange store has a very fine exhibit of clothing and is the only store represented in this way at the fair.

Children's Day.

The attendance yesterday was not as large as it was today or as large as the number expected at any of the other days of the fair. It was Children's Day, however, and there were crowds of little folks who were delighted with the many attractions. Pony races were the feature of the afternoon and they proved most exciting for the young people.

Good Race Program.

Especially gratifying has been given by the fair management to the racing program and the list of entries is large and includes some good horses. The entries in today's races were as follows:

JANGLE UPSET VERY PEACEFUL SESSION

DISCUSSION FOLLOWING BUSINESS OF MEETING CAUSED WRANGLE AMONG CERTAIN MEMBERS OF COUNCIL.

SOME CHOLER SHOWN

Variety of Subjects Discussed Seemed to Add Pepper to Spice of the Arguments—Routine Business Transacted.

Water rates, the purchase of the plant of the water company, the ordinance regarding electric wires in the city and personalities became mixed up in a discussion that was somewhat heated, at the close of the meeting of the common council last evening. The regular routine of business was attended to with little discussion and with considerable rapidity.

The discussion began after the city attorney, at the request of the mayor, had read the statement of the state railroad commission on the water rates, including the recommendation of the city attorney regarding the new rates fixed by the commission.

It was announced by the mayor that the industrial and commercial club at its next meeting would discuss whether it was advisable to purchase the property of the Janesville Water company and that the club had invited the council to attend the meeting. A water plant expert from South Bend, Ind., who had charge of a municipal water plant in South Bend, will speak before the club.

"It is my opinion at the present time," said the mayor, "that the city should purchase the water company. From the evidence I now have at hand it would be well for the city to assume control of the property. Those are my views at the present time, but if anyone can show me wherein I am wrong, I am willing to change them."

"The plant would pay for itself in ten or twelve years without extra taxation and not have any effect on the bond issue. The bond issue for the purchase of a water or lighting plant, the rate commission tells me, does not have any effect on the bonds of the city."

Alderman Buchholz started the arguments with a question to City Attorney Maxfield, asking the latter if he was satisfied with the decision, the city attorney replying that he was. Questions were put to the city attorney with regard to points involved in the case, Mr. Maxfield answering them.

Changing suddenly, Alderman Buchholz asked Mr. Maxfield if the city attorney was empowered to start suits in which the city was involved without authorization from the common council. "The city attorney replied that he was not and Alderman Buchholz asked to know, if such were true, why the city attorney had started the suit before the Wisconsin Tax Commission without being authorized to do so. Reference to Mr. Maxfield's position as a member of the board of review was also made.

Mr. Maxfield replied that the action taken before the tax commission was not started as city attorney but was made by him as a taxpayer and that while he had been a member of the board of review he had protested against the assessment, but suggested that the assessors be given thirty days extra to correct and had signed the tax roll under protest. There was some quibbling between the alderman and the city attorney, which the mayor put a stop to by saying that he considered enough had been said on that subject and asking what the Fire and Water committee of the council, of which Alderman Buchholz is chairman, had done with regard to the suits started by the city for alleged violation of the electric wire ordinance and if the committee was ready to report their recommendations with regard to the ordinance, as he had asked them to do.

Clash Over Wire Case.
This precipitated a clash between the mayor and the alderman. Alderman Buchholz reported that the committee had met with the city attorney and chief of the fire department and decided that one of the suits should be dropped. This brought about a question by the mayor as to what authority the committee had for taking such action and why the matter had not been reported to the council as the mayor had requested.

Mayor Nichols stated he had been holding up the complaint for his signature and that unless the matter was reported soon either to prosecute the telephone company or to rescind the ordinance, he would sign the complaint. Alderman Buchholz declared he was positive the city would not recover on the action. The mayor then declared that the matter should have been reported to the council for them to take some action, stating that he was not taking instructions from Alderman Buchholz. It was finally decided that a report would be given at the next meeting of the council and a substitute ordinance, drawn up by M. G. Jeffels making the required height of the wires lower, would be brought up for its third reading, the ordinance having received first and second readings when introduced.

The discussion over electric wires brought the question from Alderman Buchholz as to whether the city might order all electric wire poles removed in the business district of the city. The reply of the city attorney was that the city had power to do this. "Then it ought to be done," said Alderman Buchholz. "It is the best thing we can do."

Bankruptcy Case.
Attorney E. D. McGowan, attorney for the creditors of R. P. Sawyer, formerly proprietor of the Bowler City Hotel at the corner of Pleasant and River streets, who absconded, addressed the aldermen just before the recess was taken, asking that they grant the petition to transfer the license granted to Mr. Sawyer to George A. Hanson. Mr. McGowan stated that Sawyer had been adjudged bankrupt by the United States court and that he is now settling Sawyer's affairs as best he can. Mr. Hanson was formerly a partner with the missing man in running the hotel and has offered to buy the property. If the license could be transferred, Mr. McGowan said, he could secure more money for the creditors, as the arrangements were all made, according to the decree of the federal court, for the transfer of all the property to Hanson. The petition to transfer the license was granted by the council and the bond of Mr. Hanson was accepted.

Fire Chief's Report.
The quarterly report of Chief of the Fire Department H. C. Klein was presented and read at last night's meeting. Figures given in the report show that up until the present time there have been seventy-one alarms of fire, mostly still alarms.

The most serious of the fires which have occurred were in the American House block, Burns and Mills, and the tea house. The chief reported that he had carried out the orders of the council to order the Bittingham & Hixon Lumber company to cease building operations in their yard but they had not obeyed the orders. He had inspected the work being done, he said, and found that the company had exceeded the terms of the permit granted by the council.

A recommendation that the membership of the department be strengthened by the addition of four call men was included in the report. The report was accepted and placed on file.

Coal Bids.
Bids from five local dealers to furnish the city with one hundred and thirty-one tons of coal for the city hall and fire stations were opened at the beginning of the meeting and the public buildings committee, to whom the bids were referred, was given two weeks further time to report. The bids were as follows: Range, small egg and chestnut coal; W. J. Baker & Co., $8.15; Herman Lichtfuss, $8.70; Cullen Bros., $8.45; Bittingham & Hixon Lumber Co., $8.65; William Buggs, range and small egg, $8.15, chestnut, $8.40; Beckwith, W. J. Baker & Co., $8.25; H. Lichtfuss, $5.70; Cullen Bros., $5.45; Bittingham & Hixon Lumber Co., $5.65; William Buggs, $5.15.

Street Improvements.
Plans and specifications for the improvement of North Academy street from Milwaukee St. to the tracks of the Northwestern railway, were accepted last night and a resolution was passed to the effect that the city should pay for the improvement, ordering the payment of $107,434 from the first ward fund as the city share of the cost was passed.

Remains on North Bluff street from East Milwaukee street to North First street and on North Wisconsin street were ordered to be made with crushed stone. The street commissioner was ordered to see that all names had been placed on electric wire poles and that if the ordinance passed by the council in this regard was not obeyed by September 11, to start proceedings against those violating it. An order was passed that Moore & Lovelace, who have the contract for building cement sidewalks ordered by the city, build a sidewalk on the north side of Western avenue from Cherry street to Academy street in accordance with their contract with the city. The firm was also ordered to construct all sidewalks ordered by the city within twenty days or forfeit their contract. It was claimed that the cement contractors had been neglecting work ordered by the city for other jobs.

An order was passed that notices be served on property owners on Garfield avenue and on Wheeler street to clean the sidewalks and grade their property between the sidewalk line, the work to be done by the city and charged to the property in case the property owners failed to do so.

The report of the street assessment committee on the proposals for cement curbs and gutters in the First, Fourth and Fifth wards was accepted. Instructions were given the city clerk to order three cartloads of paving brick and the street commissioner was ordered to put in cast iron gutter plates on Wall street on the east side of Terrace street and on Terrace street on the north side of Pleasant street. The street commissioner was also ordered to serve sidewalk notices on property owners in the Second and Third wards. The report of William E. Dulin, superintendent of the stone crusher, for the past two weeks, was accepted.

Gutting Business.
The decision of the railroad rate commission in the water case was accepted and ordered published. Reports were received from the city treasurer and chief of police. The board of education report was ordered published. The appointment of J. P. Helder, Harry Austin and Ed. Myers as special police without pay, for labor, was confirmed and the payment of three dollars each to William Dulin and Martin Hessler, who acted as special officers on Monday was ordered. Bills for labor and other current expenses were allowed.

SOCIETY OF BROTHERHOOD CHURCH NAMES OFFICERS
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Brotherhood, Sept. 6.—The annual election of officers of the Junior Aid society of the M. E. church took place on Tuesday and the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. C. B. Atkinson; vice president, Mrs. A. H. Brinkman; secretary, Mrs. Lilla Brinkman; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Stahler. The ladies served a picnic dinner in the city park to the members, their husbands and some friends and all had a most enjoyable time.

Personal.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION AT CLINTON WAS A SUCCESS

Good Sized Crowd Enjoyed Program of the Day—Other News of Interest.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Clinton, Sept. 6.—The Labor day celebration here was a success in every way. The day was ideal and the crowd was all that could be expected. The music by the Edgerton band was inspiring and the program was carried out exactly as advertised. It is understood a good balance is left in the treasury after paying all the expenses.

Miss Mary Hollenbeck.
Miss Mary Hollenbeck died Monday morning at one o'clock, after a brief illness. She was taken sick almost immediately after the burial of her brother, Morris, about a week ago.

Other News.
Sheriff Ransom came down Monday afternoon and again yesterday morning and subpoenaed three or four Clinton citizens as witnesses for examination by the district attorney.

Miss Elizabeth Wilson of Madison recent part of Monday here and Miss Mary Wilson arrived yesterday to visit friends for a few days.

PROLIFIC FASHION
You know the style story—twice a year Uncle Sam knicks at Paris' door, lays a few frowns, and lo and behold—a new style is born. Who cares. Well about five million of Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews—and the other eighty-five million go right on buying the merchandise that is becoming to them and making the well dressed American people.

CARACOLS AND PLUSHES.
Manufacturers are putting out unusually attractive models in heavy woolsens, and it looks as though plush and caracol will have about third place in coats.

FURS UNUSUALLY STRONG
Indications point to an earlier fur season, owing to the vogue of the one piece street dresses. These dresses are brought out in quite heavy materials, such as velvets, corduroys, broadcloths and fancy worsteds. These garments will be worn quite late in the autumn supplemented with a stylish fur neck piece and muff.

DRESSES FOR EARLY FALL
Aside from the show pieces the garments receiving most attention are the one piece street dresses. In most cases they are made to fasten at the side-front with skirt a trifle longer than was the case last season, but still short enough to prevent touching the ground. The large collars usually have deep revers, finish extending in tapering line to the side-front closing. This allows the use of a lace and embroidered chemise, finished with a side full, which falls in graceful ripples or stretches in plainer finish well over the arm in pointed outline. All kinds of frills are employed extensively.

WRITES HE SINNEO, THEN DISAPPEARS

Missouri Pastor Is Missing—Single Sentence Explains Cause.

NOT SEEN SINCE MESSAGE

Preacher Leaves Methodist Conference to Write Resignation From All Offices—Reference to Secret Fault Puzzles—Wife Is Prostrated.

Columbia, Mo., Sept. 6.—The single sentence, "God knows my sin," is the only explanation given by Rev. H. H. Johnson for his resignation from all of the offices he held in the Missouri conference of the Methodist church, south, and his sudden disappearance. He was here attending the conference, being secretary of the board of church extension and one of the leaders in Methodist affairs.

Rev. Dr. Johnson left here Saturday and a message has been received from him in Mexico, Mo.

Resigns From Ministry.
The minister tendered his resignation from the board, from the conference and from the ministry. He ended his message with the sentence: "God knows my sin."

"The message read in part: 'I have dishonored the ministry by correspondence. I have not been guilty of immorality, but I have been guilty of injurious conduct through correspondence.'

Discussing the mysterious message the presiding officer of the conference, G. A. Lenhoff of Mexico, disclaimed any knowledge of what the minister's "sin" consisted of.

"His letter to me was the first thing I knew of any wrong doing," Mr. Lenhoff said.

Wife Is Prostrated.
Clarence, Mo., Sept. 6.—Further than to say that she believed her husband to be in Iowa, Mrs. H. H. Johnson, wife of the Southern Methodist minister who has resigned from all offices connected with the church, would not comment on the case. Mrs. Johnson is prostrated at her home here.

New York, Sept. 6.—Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette, hopes of the black race, slashed and slugged their way through ten bitter rounds as the principals in the second fight of importance in the heart of New York city, under the Fawcay law, and at the final bell they were locked together, still ripping and tearing with little advantage to either.

Minus the riotous scenes of the Wells-brown battle, the meeting of the big black fellows furnished a terrific fight from start to finish and the 6,000 men who thronged Madison Square garden were in an uproar throughout.

THE GRIP OF PAIN

Do You Want to Be Released? Do You Want to Get Well?

All pain and disease are manifestations of spinal subluxations, pinched nerves shutting off like water is shut off in a kinked hose, the flow of energy from the brain through the spinal nerve to the throat, bronchial tubes, heart, lungs, kidneys, liver, spleen, abdomen, arms, legs, and any and every other part of the body. Paralyze the nerve functions and you have disease, pain.

The Chiropractors adjust the spine, (removes the cause)—the nerve pressure, and permits Nature to assume its former condition, you then get well.

Come and see us today—put off no longer the opportunity which thousands of others have found and tested—their experience, their return to health—is your hope.

THE FUN HAS BEGUN.

It merely took the fact that President Taft was ready for his western trip to be finally fixed upon when all the insurgent leaders rush into print with their objections to his renomination and re-election. The objections, as a rule, are based on personal differences they have had with the President over matters of policy. The Canadian writer is one of the chief causes for discussion as is his refusal to sign the Arizona state constitution with the recall for judges in it.

This continual bickering will doubtless have its effect but the result will be the same as though they had not talked. In 1896, Senator Teller and other leading republicans opposed the republican platform for its refusal to recognize the free silver question and walked out of the national convention and party at the same time. Their places were taken by democrats, equally prominent in their own party, who approved of the stand taken on this question and supported the republican ticket from top to bottom at the fall election.

While the present demonstration will not, perhaps, lead to the walking out of the party of men who oppose Taft and his renomination, in some cases it might be just as well if it did. This great country is governed by the rule of the majority. The votes of the people elect the President, and while the voters will doubtless be influenced by the attitude of the men in public life in their respective locality, still, as a whole, they are thinking for themselves.

It is almost as certain as the fact that there will be a national republican convention next year, that Taft will be nominated for the office he now holds for a second term. However, the present attitude of men prominent in the insurgent movement is given prominence in the press and will have an effect of perhaps making his renomination less in total number of votes than it would otherwise. The spirit of insurgency is prevalent throughout the country, but, like the freeback movement, the Free Sallers and other "isms" and "isms." It will die out at last.

THAT RE-ASSESSMENT.

A careful analysis of the question of the possibility of a re-assessment of the taxes of the city by an order of the state tax commission, shows that as a whole the city will lose. Its effect will be bad for the growth and advertisement of Janesville as a business community and a possibility for the location of some large industry. Just as long as the adjacent cities do not come to the same standard that the tax commission would insist on for Janesville, this city would be the loser. It is to be hoped the re-assessment can be done away with and that the matter handled in such a way, that if there is any injustice in the local taxation rates, it can be adjusted by the business men of the city themselves.

COUNCIL HARMONY.

Evidently the word harmony is forgotten in the common council. Hardly a meeting takes place but questions of importance are brought up which lead to prolonged discussions that do not seem to lead to any definite results and only increase the confusion of administering the city's business. Together, gentlemen, and work in harmony and for the city's best interests. Of course it would not be possible to have any ordinances enacted or orders passed, without a difference of opinion, but do not let bitterness enter into the discussion.

THE CONCERTS.

Janesville enjoys the concerts given by the Lower City band. This organization deserves encouragement, and should have the support of every citizen who is interested in seeing the city grow. The band boys are working hard and faithfully and the people who through the court house park show their appreciation of their efforts. Get together and boost.

How does it happen that North Bluff street has escaped improvement, so long?

It is one of the main thoroughfares into the city from the north and is worse than the rocky road to Dublin over was.

The Park Association is planning for a series of matinee races during the coming fall months. Make the park so popular, gentlemen, that next year ball games can be held there successfully.

The birdmen are to fly from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast next. Soon a trip to Europe by an aeroplane will be talked of as of no more consequence than a trip to Rockford by interurban.

Another hero tale is shattered. It now appears that Eddie Guerin, the Chicago thief, never was confined on Devils Island and consequently did not escape from that place after all.

Germany and France are holding army maneuvers on near the border line for the mere fun of the thing and even Belgium is making warlike preparations.

Farmers throughout the county are confident now that they have good crops despite the predictions earlier in the season that everything would be a failure.

Evansville is holding a most successful fair this week. It is a county institution and should be well attended by persons from all parts of the county.

Canada is almost certain to accept that reciprocity agreement by an overwhelming majority. What will the calamity howlers talk about then?

When Janesville starts in to celebrate why it celebrates. Witness the crowds at the park, golf links and theatre on Monday last.

The interurban has begun laying the extra switches on North Main street. Now for the paving of that street.

The next big gathering that Janesville is to entertain is the Eagles' convention in 1912.

Lake resorters are glad to return to their homes when the chilly winds begin to blow.

They still are seeking that Mona Lisa and longing to witness her smile again.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

By A. W. MACY.

WILBERFORCE'S FIGHT ON SLAVERY.

A good example of what may be accomplished through the persistent efforts of one man or set of men is illustrated in the life of William Wilberforce. When a mere boy at school he became interested in the slavery question, and wrote an article for the local paper condemning the "iniquitous institution," and throughout a long life he never lost sight of the subject. England passed an act abolishing slavery on home soil in 1807, but it was the object of Wilberforce's life to have it abolished in all English colonies. He labored incessantly, making speeches and writing articles looking to that end. Three days before his death, which occurred July 29, 1833, word was brought to him that a bill abolishing slavery in the colonies had passed to its second reading. Nine days after his death, the bill was passed.

UNCLE WALT THE POET PHILOSOPHER

(Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams.)
By WALT MASON.

Into our little burg there came a minister of world-wide fame who preached for half an hour; his sermon surely was a scream; it touched upon a vital theme, and thrived with force and power. The folks from all the countryside had come to hear the pulpit's pride. The eminent hand out some words of cheer; he drew big money for his speech—far less than that our pastor'd preach a quarter of a year. I saw our pastor standing by, with admiration in his eye, a humble, shrinking man, who labors with us day by day, and does his best to show the way, and teach salvation's plan. Our pastor knows what hunger's like; he makes long journeys on the pike to spring his gospel dove; he lifts the mourner's drooping head, and prays beside the dying bed, and our little sins; he tells us of the scheme that wins forgiveness in the end; he's been our comrade through the years, he shares our triumphs and our tears, he is our daily friend, and bless him in his humble path! I'll bet he cuts a wider swath than all these surplused lads, the church's famed and gifted stars who seat around in private cars and lecture for the scads!

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE LAUGH CURE.

Helene Renard, a French actress, has been infecting all Paris with her remedy for the ills of life.

Her medicine is laughter. "The actress tells how she was ill and in debt. One morning she awoke in despair. 'Why get up? Would it not be better to get up no more in this world? I shed tears. All at once I began to laugh. It was a laugh of despair, but I felt much better. That was the beginning.'

The vivacious Helene goes on: 'There is my bad, bitter medicine. Why drink medicine for my stomach when I have no food to put into that so troubled stomach? Then I laugh. What a laugh! I drink my medicine and laugh.' And so she discovered—'The great secret—to laugh.'

And now: 'If my shoe comes unfastened I laugh. If I tear my dress I laugh. If I do any provoking thing whatever I laugh. When I feel blue I laugh. When my creditors came I told them I could not pay and laughed. They looked at me and laughed with me.'

The result? 'You see, I just laughed at my troubles and—poof—they left me. I am no longer that poor, dyspeptic, pale cheeked, sorrowful Helene.'

Helene formulated her new-old philosophy, theater managers took her up, and she began illustrating her cure, punctuating the teaching with her own infectious laughter. Paris capitulated, Helene had arrived.

A fact? To some extent. The Parisian nature only absorbs a belief that fits its material disposition. But—'There is much medicine in the cure—medicine for body and mind. It is nature's cure. A real laugh both mangles the liver and drives the cobwebs from the corners of the brain. A real laugh—not a mere cackle—is a powerful protest against pessimism.'

Try the laugh cure. Helene says: 'You must begin each day with laughter. Begin as soon as you open your eyes in the morning. There's magic in it.'

That's it. If you begin the day with a laugh the world will laugh with you. It is all in the mental attitude with which you approach your day.

Laugh early and often. Laugh and your torpid liver loses its lethargy. Laugh and your fears flee like the morning mists. Laugh and the sky turns blue. Laugh and your petty troubles fold their little tents and silently steal away.

Laugh! Laugh and you shall live long in the land.

SHOE DEALERS START FIGHT

Retailers Begin War on Manufacturers Who Maintain Stores.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 6.—The Michigan Retail Shoe Dealers' association, in session here, voted to boycott all manufacturers who maintain retail branch stores in various cities of the country. The association also voted to establish an insurance organization of its own, holding that the insurance companies are charging such exorbitant rates it will be cheaper to furnish its own insurance. Under Michigan law, a paid-in capital of $100,000 is necessary before permission can be obtained to do business in the state. Half of the required amount was raised at the session.

Revolt Given Setback—Two Generals Captured by Federals.

Mexico City, Sept. 6.—Juan Salgado, the head of the new revolt in the state of Guerrero, was captured after a two hours' battle near the town of Aguajal by Federal forces. Ninety-nine men are reported to have been killed on both sides during the engagement. Emilio Acosta, head of the revolution in the state of Vera Cruz, was captured by the state police at Panuco, in the state of Tamaulipas. These two captures appear to have put a damper on the revolts in that part of Mexico.

TAFT'S ITINERARY IS OUT

President Will Visit 115 Cities on His Western Trip.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 6.—President Taft's itinerary for his six-weeks' speaking tour in the west was announced at the executive office. The president will travel 12,000 miles and visit 115 cities. He will leave Beverly the night of September 15 and return to Washington the morning of November 1.

The president will make his first address at Syracuse September 18. The first part of the trip will be given to the eastern and middle western states. Beginning October 2 he will make a tour of the far western and coast states.

GOVERNOR STOPS A HANGING

Oregon Executive Commutes Sentence of Convicted Murderer.

Salem, Ore., Sept. 6.—Joseph P. Webb, who was convicted of the murder of William A. Johnson, a ranchman, instead of being hanged, was the guest of honor at a convict dinner in the penitentiary.

Webb's sentence was commuted by Governor Oswald West five minutes before the time appointed for the hanging.

Governor West said he was influenced to grant the commutation by Frank L. Stanton's poem, 'They Hung Bill Jones.'

UNCLE HIRAN ROBBED

AUNT SAMANTHA STUNG

Uncle Hiran said, 'Gosh, here's a doctor that's a good man; don't charge for consultation or examination.' So he went to see this great specialist doctor from Peru and Paris at the hotel and came home with a bottle of Epsom Salts and water; cost him five dollars. Hiran is now cursing drugs. Hiran didn't know that the specialist was a medicine peddler.

Aunt Samantha sent a dollar down east for a bottle of secret process blood medicine (alives and water). Sister Sue sent away for a box of flesh reducer; cost her two dollars for five cents worth of cow sals. Old Cap James bought medicine for years of the medicine wagon. The economical old lady says, 'These druggists charge an awful price. The paper says make a pint of cough syrup for fifty cents.' So she got a bottle of genuine concentrated Laxative virgin oil of Mentho Pine and it cost her fifty cents for two cents worth of Balsam of Fir. These are the people who say drugs are no good.

Now there are good and poor drugs and bad drugs. Don't buy every remedy advertised; don't think you can save money by using newspaper recipes. Most of them are fakes. Ask your druggist. Come in and ask questions of Mr. Fleming, our graduate Pharmacist and Chemist. Learn if a remedy is good before you buy. We are always glad to give you our honest answer. Good drugs are good. ## MAN IS CAUGHT WITH BOMB

Police Think Italian Will Solve Recent Outrages in New York.

New York, Sept. 6.—The police arrested a young Italian named Giuseppe Constantino with a bomb under his coat all ready to explode and believe through him they will trace the perpetrators of the numerous bomb outrages that have baffled them for the past month. The prisoner carried a wicked looking bomb, shaped like a cantaloupe, with an eight-inch fuse attached, and the police believe he was about to use it.

MOTHER DROWNS WITH SON.

Dubuque, Ia., Sept. 6.—In an effort to rescue her twelve-year-old son, who had fallen from an overhanging branch of a tree into the Maquoketa river, near New Vienna, Mrs. Bernard Weene, aged forty years, plunged into the river and clutching the boy's body drowned with him.

CHURCH GETS EDDY MONEY

Court Permits $72,000 to Be Paid as Stipulated in Will.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 6.—The litigation over the estate of the late Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of the Christian Science church, advanced another stage in the superior court here. Chief Justice Robert M. Wallace, who some time ago granted an injunction restraining the executor of the Eddy estate, Henry M. Baker of New, from removing any property of the estate from this state, modified the injunction so as to permit the payment of $72,000 to the Second Church of Christ, Scientist, of New York.

Are You Afflicted With Piles?

If so, read this article carefully, and learn what your leading druggists think of Meritol Pile Remedy. If you are a chronic sufferer from Piles or Hemorrhoids in any of their various forms, it is not necessary to attempt to describe the awful suffering and torture resulting from them. The pain, the intense itching, the burning sensation and the awful distress and discomfort is too well known by you to admit of adequate description. If you are only afflicted with this disease in an acute or primary stage, then let this be a warning to you to begin today to check the disease in its early stages and thus avoid months and perhaps years of suffering and probably an operation from this, one of the greatest afflictions which can come to the human body.

This disease, whether acute or chronic, is easily and rapidly overcome by the proper use of Meritol Pile Remedy.

This remedy is in a class by itself, for, instead of depending on an outside application, as in the case of nearly all preparations for this affliction, Meritol Pile Remedy is so prepared and put up that it is applied by means of a rectal nozzle, which screws onto a collapsible tube containing the remedy, and which, when inserted, discharges a portion of the contents of the tube freely upon the internal Piles or Hemorrhoids.

In addition to this advanced method in the treatment of Piles, a scientific internal remedy is included in this treatment. This remedy is in tablet form, enclosed in a glass tube, to be taken internally.

Meritol Pile Remedy is scientifically prepared for the treatment of Piles in all of the various forms of this distressing and painful affliction. It will give positive and permanent relief when all others fail, and we heartily recommend it to any sufferer as we are thoroughly familiar with the formula used in this prescription and we are positive that the most satisfactory results are obtained by its use.

lowed through four acts of humorous adventure in Bob Blake, interpreted by Robert E. O'Connor, a most capable actor with a well developed sense of humor. The part of the heroine with whom Blake falls in love at first sight, is played by Rosa Dunlop, an exceedingly pretty and talented actress. There are numerous other characters incidental to life in a small western village where the scenes of the play are laid, which are so true to nature that they will be recognized instantly by anyone in the audience who has ever spent a day in a small town. There are no joblots of shop-worn jokes in "The Traveling Salesman"; everything is right up to the minute. The scene in the second act depicting a poker game in progress in one of the rooms of the small-town hotel, is worth many times the price of an orchestra seat.

THREE DAYS ADRIFT AT SEA IN STORM'S FURY

Society Girl Unconscious and Youth Delirious When Rescued Off New England Coast.

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 6.—Miss Edith Henderson, twenty-one years old, and Thomas Denison, twenty-two, were picked up six miles off the coast by the yacht Rob Roy, after they had drifted three days at sea in a little catboat. When they were picked up by Commodore Robert Strong of the Lynn Yacht club Miss Henderson lay unconscious, and Denison was raving in a delirium. They were taken to Portsmouth hospital, where the girl revived. The young man is still delirious. While they were adrift they passed through a severe storm, and were in danger of being carried to death by the waves. The girl revived sufficiently to tell an incoherent story of their perilous adventures. The young man is still senseless. Denison is a member of a well-known family in Dover. Miss Henderson is a charming society girl. They started Saturday morning in a small catboat for a cruise around Portsmouth harbor and off the coast. Commodore Strong, who discovered the helpless craft, said that he sighted the catboat with its petticoat signal at dawn. Only the flying skirt caught his eye and that was what saved the young people.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

"It matters little where I was born
Whether my parents were rich or poor.
Or walked in the pride of wealth secure;
But whether I live an honest man,
And hold my integrity in my clutch
I tell you brother, plain as I am,
It matters much."
—From the Swedish in The Optimist's Good-morning.

REFINEMENT is a most desirable quality.
No one can deny that.
But over-refinement is just as much a vice as the other is a virtue.
No one who has ever met a person who is suffering and making others suffer from a case of super-refinement can possibly deny that.
A woman has just moved into our neighborhood who belongs to this class.
She is a scion of a splendid stock. She has been finely bred. She has been splendidly educated.

But she has neither inherited nor acquired one inestimable thing—a sense of values. She has but one inestimable thing. It is refinement.
If she might assist in the final separation
of the sheep from the goats I believe that the people who possessed refinement of taste and manner, no matter what their other qualifications or lack of them,
would be courteously directed to Elysium while those who lacked refinement no matter what trifling recommendations, such as sterling character or spiritual worth
they possessed, would be firmly shooed off in the other direction.

This woman, since her coming into the neighborhood,
has naturally met many new people. I have chanced to be with her a great deal and have been astonished and saddened by her treatment of some of them.

If she decides that a new acquaintance is sufficiently refined, her manner is exquisite in its cordiality and evidence of breeding. She is every inch a beautiful gentlewoman.

But if she decides that a new acquaintance is somewhat lacking in refinement, she becomes so eager to draw a line of distinction between this creature and herself, that she loses all her own refinement. Politeness so cold that it is scarcely politeness at all, and even positive rudeness, characterize her manner.

And the worst of it is that many of the people who are thus treated are
people of great mental and moral worth.

One is a woman with great brains and ability, who, besides managing her home to perfection, has so much helped her husband in his business, that, though people of moderate circumstances, they have been able to send their four children to college. She herself lacked an early education and has never been able to quite overcome some little roughness of speech. Consequently she is unathletic.

Another is a man whose innumerable charities are as beautiful, as they are unostentatious, and whose family life is one continual lesson in "the fine art of being good to live with." But he will wear colored shirts and ties that do not always harmonize and he hasn't mastered a few of the minor details of good manners, although in all that rests on usefulness and true courtesy,
he is most perfectly versed.

Another is—but why tell you more? You know them all—the simple, kindly, gentle, efficient, splendid folks whom such a woman as she cannot possibly understand.

If the loss were so decidedly hers who deserves it, she might feel much more sorry. As it is, we can only sigh and think, "refinement is a desirable quality but over-refinement—well let's add it to our collection of vices to be preserved from."

ILL beautiful is just as useful
as the useful and sometimes
more so.
—Victor Hugo.

Life without hope draws nectar in a flower,
And hope without an object cannot live.

CHOICE DISHES FOR OCCASIONS.

Pudding Glace.—Scald two-thirds of
a cup of raisins in two cups of milk,
cook fifteen minutes and strain; add a tablespoonful of flour to a cup of sugar. Mix well, add to the milk with a beaten egg, pinch of salt; strain
and cool. Add half a cup of candied
pineapple, a third of a cup of Canton
ginger cut fine, a half cup of almonds
chopped, three tablespoonfuls of grape juice and a quart of cream. Freeze.
Serve the pudding for some other dish.

Rose Disque.—Whip a quart of cream, three-fourths of a cup of sugar and a cup of macerated
crushed, a teaspoonful of rose extract. Color with damask rose and freeze.

Deet Salad.—Cook four large or eight small beets, cut in cubes; mix with a cupful of pecans. Serve with mayonnaise dressing tinted rose color.

Chicken Salad.—Chop or cut in small pieces the breast of a chicken;
add a cup of blanched walnuts and
twice as much celery as chicken.
Serve with any dressing preferred.

Spanish Butter.—Cream two-thirds of
a cup of butter, add two cups of sugar,
stir together two cups of flour with
two teaspoonfuls of baking powder;
add the flour alternately with the cup
of sugar milk; add four eggs well beaten, a cup of raisins and a tea-
spoonful of cloves and two of cinnamon.
Bake in square tin. Ice white
wasm.

Icing for Cakes.—A cup of sugar and a fourth of a cup of water are put on to boil. Beat the white of an egg, and when the syrup is like honey add three tablespoonfuls, beating all the while;
return the dish to the fire and cook
until the syrup threads from the spoon,
then add slowly to the egg. Beat until cool. This frosting will, if the directions are carefully followed, be shiny and smooth on top and creamy underneath.

TALK TO HOUSE-KEEPERS

(By Nellie L. Horn.)
"September, rich in corn and wine,
Of the twelve months completest mine.
Now apples rosy, and seed
Ripens in green and flower and brown;
Now the green acorn growth becometh
And ruddy nuts come showering down."
—Mary Howitt.

Since potatoes form so large a portion of our diet, it is well to know
the best methods of preparing them
and the greatest variety of ways.
There is a mistaken idea that any one can cook potatoes in any way, but the heavy, soggy potatoes one meets
with only too often prove the failure of this belief. After they have been pared and washed, let them stand in cold water until time for boiling, as
this prevents unsightly discolorations.
If the potatoes are old, put over the fire in a saucepan of cold water with
two teaspoonfuls of salt to the quart,
and let them boil until tender with a skewer or knitting needle show that there are no "bones" left in the center. Then drain, return to the fire and shake them
gently until they are dry and mellow. New potatoes should always be put on with boiling water sufficiently salted.

When baking potatoes it should be remembered that the oven should be moderate, as too great a heat will crust the potatoes over, preventing the evaporation of moisture, and making the flesh of the potato shrink into a heavy, watery lump. When they have been in the oven for about three-quarters of an hour, take one out with a towel and press it; if it is soft, it is done. Never try them with a fork,
as this causes the steam to escape,
and the potato will fall and become waxy. When they are done press
gently in the towel, one at a time,
without breaking the skin, until thoroughly unshaking; then return to the oven. With this treatment they may be kept hot for an hour without impairing the flavor or quality. When ready to serve, cut the skin across
one side, press the potato toward the opening, and put in a small bit of butter, a little salt and a dash of parsley.

Left-over potatoes may be made in-
to stuffed potatoes. Halve six potatoes and scoop out the "insides" and mash; add hot milk, a little melted
butter, salt and pepper, and beat until light. Fold in two well beaten egg whites, and fill the potato shells
heaping the top. Set in the oven until nicely browned, and serve at once.

A variety of mashed potato that is all too common, is a soggy, lumpy
mass, patted down into a fairly good substitute for vulcanized rubber.
Properly prepared they are delicious.
After they have been boiled
and dried, mash until they are completely free from lumps; then add sufficient cream or milk to make them

moist, a liberal lump of butter and salt, if necessary. Then whip with a fork until they are fluffy and white,
remembering that it takes "elbow grease" to do it. Set in a pan of boiling water to keep hot until serving time. Have the serving dish hot,
and spoon the potato lightly into it,
heaping it up. Dust with pepper and put a lump of butter in a cavity in the center.
The next article will contain other ways of serving potatoes.

WHITE BREAD DEFICIENT IN MINERAL ELEMENT.

No question in diet, except
the most question, has been so vigorously debated as that of the relative values of white and entire wheat bread. Some maintain that the fine white flour contains a larger percent, or nutriment than the entire wheat flour, quoting the analysis of a government chemist to prove it. They also insist that the coarse outer shell of the wheat is extremely irritating to the delicate lining
of the intestinal canal, one physician, who writes extensively
on diet, going so far as to say that it is better to use the white bread and take a "judicious pill" occasionally.

In speaking of the chief defect of milk as a food for adults
I have called attention to its deficiency in iron, which gives that "sand" that is necessary to bring the moral qualities into play. Now the standard analyses show that the percentage of iron in whole wheat is more than double that in superfine
white flour. Sulphur and chlorine, highly essential elements
of the blood, are entirely eliminated from white flour, and only a trace of sodium is left—
which cannot be naturally supplied in common salt.

The ordinary white flour contains less than half as much fat as whole wheat, and only one-fourth the mineral matter.

FOR YOKES OR UNDERWEAR.

This makes a charming design for a yoke, or on underwear. The leaves and small flowers are done in the solid satin stitch, with the stems and tendrils in the outline stitch. The large flowers may be worked solid, or outlined in the long stitch. The dots are worked as eyelets. Use mercerized cotton No. 25 or 30-floss for the embroidery.

Dresses for Girls

THE dress shown in the first illustration is quite simple but smart; it
is suitable for making up in any fine woolen, shantung or linen. Our model is in rosebud cashmere, a shaped piece is added to the lower part of skirt; it may be laid on flat
and the joining covered by trimming
or have a piping of striped silk standing up over edge.

The bodice is cut and trimmed to match the skirt; it has a yoke and undersleeves of tucked muslin. Small turn-over collar of white embroidered
lawn.

Singular.

We noted yesterday the drowning
of a boy named Johnny Ward in Mill river, and stated his body had not been found. That night a man who is familiar with the circumstances of the case had a dream in which he saw the boy, so he states, clinging to a post under a building. Yesterday a careful search for the body was made,
and it was found under Daniela's mill,
on Mill street, the arms of the lad
firmly clasped about a piece of timber
used for a support to the building.
The finding of the body in the position
as seen in the dream is singular.

One Cause for Rejoicing.

Irish Doctor—Well, I've knocked the fayver out o' him, anyhow. Wife—Oh, doctor, do you think there is any hope? Doctor—Small chance, I'm afraid, madam; but you'll have the satisfaction of knowing that he died
cured.—Detroit Saturday Night.

THE DOCTOR'S QUESTION

Much Sickness Due to Bowel Disorders

A doctor's first question when consulted by a patient is, "Are your bowels regular?" He knows that ninety eight per cent. of illness is attended
with inactive bowels and torpid liver,
and that this condition must be removed gently and thoroughly before
health can be restored.

Resall Ordinaries are a positive,
pleasant and safe remedy for constipation and bowel disorders in general.
We are so certain of their great curative value that we promise to return
the purchaser's money in every case
when they fail to produce entire satisfaction.

Resall Ordinaries are eaten like candy, they act quietly and have a soothing, strengthening, healing influence on the entire intestinal tract.
They do not purge, gripe, cause
nausea, flatulence, excessive looseness,
diarrhea or other annoying effects.
They are especially good for children,
weak persons or old folks. Three sizes, 50c, 25c, and 10c. Sold only at "Our Store"—The Resall Store, Smith Drug Co.

MISS KATHRYN RUCKER
Only American Woman Editor
in Japan

This is a photograph of Miss Kathryn Rucker, the only American woman editor of a magazine in Japan.
She is the building force behind the editorial pen of "The Japanese Magazine," published at Tokio. This success has all been won by her within two years. Miss Rucker is a daughter of Somerset Ky., and the daughter of Rev. J. B. Rucker who was an editor and leader in the temperance movement in Kentucky. About ten years ago he was assassinated by a saloonist whose interests he had fought. His family although left with a comfortable fortune, were not content to remain in Somerset after the bloody death of Mr. Rucker and all left.

Miss Kathryn Rucker went to Los Angeles where she studied art for a time. Being interested in Japanese art, she went to Kyoto about two years ago where she became a teacher in a school giving knowledge of America and the English language to a large number of children of wealthy Japanese. There her work attracted the attention of a number of young Japanese men of letters and they presented on her to accept the editor-
ship of the magazine, which she did,
and in which work she has been engaged about a year. Half the magazine is printed in English and half in the Japanese language. It is the leading monthly of the empire and wields
a great influence. Miss Rucker is only twenty seven years of age, but her work as an artist and as a writer has won her wide reputation. When she leaves her Tokyo position, she will go to Rome to study art and sculpture
in which latter she is already proficient.

Plain Thief Becoming Rare.

A Philadelphia woman stole to keep her daughter from working and a New York woman to keep her son in school.
The plain, old-fashioned person who is impelled to steal by reason of being a thief would be deemed vulgar by the modern housewife.

I Thought Today

By MRS. ROBERT M. LAFFLETTE.

WHEN men were voted in "blocks of five"
and the polling places were scenes of pulling and hauling and riot, when the caucus and convention were synonyms
of boss rule and state-making, many men
thought politics disagreeable and considered themselves too "good" to participate. It is not strange that under those conditions there grew up a sentiment that "the polling booth was no fit place for a woman."

The adoption of the Australian ballot made a new era in politics. The voter goes by himself on election day and marks his ballot secretly without interference from anybody. The nomination of all candidates for office by the same method makes the primary election equally decent and orderly.
There is now no reason why the polls are not as fit for good men and good women as a charity meeting.

There has been a great civic awakening among men, and it is now a matter of shame for any man—clergyman, judge, professor, or laborer—to fail to register and vote and work to elect good servants of the people and to secure just laws in the public interest.

Once upon a time—I like to think of it as a fairy tale—pretty, unknow-edgable women were supposed to be more attractive than those who dared cultivate their minds. But it is now considered as unworthy in women as in men to neglect their educational opportunities. I wonder if a similar change is not taking place in regard to women's civic duty? In the near future will not women who say they know nothing about public questions and do not care to know, be as much out of date as women who have no desire for a cultivated mind, no thought, except for their prettiness?

HEART AND HOME TALKS

By BARBARA BOYD

A New Field of Work for Women.

RAGGIE on Broadway, New York, was almost stopped one day recently by the crowd that gathered to watch a young woman painting a sign. There was nothing at all extraordinary in the woman or the sign, but nevertheless, the world seemed to think it ought to pause and look.

This pause was significant, if it meant that the world was giving recognition to a new field of work opening for women. But if it meant, as is so often the case, the mere idle, gaping curiosity that is vouchsafed woman whenever she undertakes something new, then it was provincial,
even though it occurred in New York.

For the time has gone by for objections to be made to a woman's taking up any work she may wish to, or to obstacles being thrown in her path. And to voice this state of mind, is simply to acknowledge that one is living in a condition of mediocrity mentally, even though he may dwell in New York. There is no reason at all why a woman should not be a sign painter if she wants to be, provided she does the work well. There is no sex in work, as some one has said; and happily, today, a woman can enter any field of activity that appeals to her.

This woman was a very sensible looking individual, with her hair rolled in a coil under a big shade hat, and an artist's apron over her shirtwaist and skirt. The company who employed her said she got the contract because her bid was the best, and that the work she had done, so far, had been entirely satisfactory. As the saying is, she delivered the goods, and that is all the business world wants.

She is a pioneer in a comparatively new field of work for women.
It is a field that will probably not attract many. But that is neither here nor there. She is simply demonstrating the fact that a woman has a right to do any work she may wish to do, and that she is quite as capable of doing it as which has hitherto been considered as belonging to man, as she is that which has been apportioned to woman.

The Kitchen God.

The kitchen god of China is perhaps not rightly so called. He has place over the cooking range, but he is the "recording angel" of the Chinese house, and it is his duty to note
the actions of each member of the family and report them to the gods
at the end of every month. Once a year, too, he goes to heaven in person and makes his annual report. So once a year the family prostrate themselves before him, carry him in procession, and finally burn him, while crackers are fired.

Woman—the Power.

Any publisher will tell you that it is the approval of the women of the country which makes the "big sellers;" that to be a paying business investment the magazine must cater to the women. It is the women of the country who read. The men read the newspapers and the articles in the magazines which their wives recommend to them.—Appleton's.

People Have Learned
This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman
begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid,
depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys
well and they will keep you well.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Janesville testimony to prove it.
Benjamin Schallcross, 269 S. River St., Janesville, Wis., says:—"Two years ago I had a great deal of trouble from inactive kidneys. The secretions from my kidneys contained sediment and were otherwise disordered. My back became so lame that it was difficult for me to stoop or lift and I felt all run down. After using Doan's Kidney Pills a short time, these symptoms of kidney complaint disappeared and I enjoyed much better health. I could not be induced to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills were I not certain of their merits."

NERVES ARE ON EDGE, STOMACH OUT OF ORDER

Happiness Does Not Come With This Condition—Tona Vita Brings Back Health.

Half sick, tired all the time, no energy or ambition, with your nerves on edge and your stomach out of order, how can you expect to get any happiness out of life when in such a miserable state?

You can't, and you won't, until you find relief from the debilitated condition that is sapping your vitality and robbing you of your ambition.

Physicians know that half the population in the large cities of this country are today afflicted with nervous debility caused by the wear and tear of modern life.

A preparation has been used by European physicians to combat this nervous condition with remarkable success. A similar preparation "Tona Vita" was introduced in this country a few months ago and is making a marvelous record here. "Tona Vita" is bringing back health and happiness to thousands of listless, debilitated men and women. You owe it to your family, you owe it to yourself to let this wonderful new tonic build you up.

There is no other medicine like it on earth; one dose will convince any one of this. If "Tona Vita" doesn't do more for you than all the other medicines you have ever taken, if it doesn't make you happier and healthier and better in every way, what you pay for it will be returned to you by the Smith Pharmacy.

Leo's Rhubarb Laxative, the assistant remedy, is another great medicine. It is a splendid family laxative, containing the medicinal properties of rhubarb—nature's own laxative. It will not injure the most delicate constitution and should be used for children above everything else. It is pleasant to the taste.

The Smith Pharmacy has the Janesville agency for "Tona Vita" and Leo's Rhubarb Laxative.

NOTES FOR CITY FARMERS ONLY.
(By H. L. RANN.)
You have noticed, haven't you, that some men will buy every new-fangled device on the market for their own use on the farm, from a patent corn planter to a riding cultivator, and still allow their wives to chase a cotton shirt up and down a rub board rather than blow $7.50 for a washing machine.

The woman who keeps on mauling her nubs against a rub board, while her lord and master rides around the cornfield and dreams of his lost youth, is a shrinking violet who ought to attend the Mothers' Congress and submit a buckhorn.

The washing machine is in the same class with the washable paper collar as a brightener of the home. By its use many a woman has been relieved of a stitch in the back which humped her over like a small boy with the green apple collar.

A woman is justified in slapping a second mortgage on every shout on the place, if the justice of the peace has riveted her to a husband who is so tight he can't take a full breath without breaking out. The study of the classics has been greatly promoted by the washing machine, for a woman can inhale the tubular with one hand and chase the family wash through the suds with the other.

If we were a woman, we would as soon think of going without an assortment of rented hair as to wiggle along through life with a ridged rub board for a bosom companion.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—If Father can't find quiet there, where can he find it?

NO MAN'S LAND A ROMANCE

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WATERS

COPYRIGHT, 1910 BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

What if his release had been solely due to the offices of his friends, to pressure brought to bear upon the state executive? . . . He felt that to discover such to be the case would prove innumerable. Death itself was preferable to life without vindication of the charge that had been laid against him.

No terribly he feared to learn the truth. His friends, those who stood by him, those who had been silent, those who had denied him; what would be their reception of him now? He consoled the names of a dozen of the dearest; did they believe in him, even now, in their secret hearts? Had they ever had absolute faith in his innocence, despite their protestations? Would he himself ever come to doubt them secretly?

Katherine Thaxter . . . He had heard nothing of or from her since his conviction; before that, little enough; a note or two of halting sympathy, tinged by a constraint he had been afraid to analyze. Whether it had been due to belief in his guilt, or to a thing more dreadful in his understanding, he had never found the courage to debate, not even in the longest watches of the hope-less nights when he had lain in waking torment in his cell, listening to some miserable condemned wretch moaning in his sleep a door or two down the row.

His thoughts had swung the full circle. He ceased to think coherently. In time Warburton touched Coast's arm with a gentle hand. "Lunch!" he queried, almost plaintive.

To see Coast smile once more was a keen delight.

When they had finished, Coast, refreshed and strengthened, diverted and enlivened, boldly grasped the nettle.

"Well?" he asked with a steady glance of courage.

Warburton pounced nimbly upon his chance. "It's exonerated," he began, and unconsciously hit upon the word so squarely that he caught himself up with a gasp at Coast's reception of it.

"Why?" he cried, alarmed, "you're white as a sheet, man! I said exonerated—full and clear!"

Coast reassured him with a gesture. "It's just joy," he explained simply. He put his head back against the cushions, closed his eyes and drew a long breath. "How was I to guess how all this had been brought about? I was afraid to ask, afraid to surmise, even. Tell me, please."

"It came—like thunder out of a clear sky, Garrett; none more amazed than I." Warburton reverted to the habit of clipped phrases that characterized his moments of excitement. "I suppose you know—you've seen the papers?"

"Only infrequently. I . . . was a bit cowardly about them, I presume."

"Then you hadn't heard about Blackstock?" Coast shook his head. "Well, his eyes went back on him—were falling during the trial, if you'll remember. I heard he'd injured them somehow—with his wireless experiment, you know. He went nearly blind and took himself out of the country—to Germany, the papers said, to consult a Berlin specialist, perhaps to undergo an operation."

"One moment," Coast took a deep breath. "Did he go alone?"

"So far as I know. Why?"

"No matter. Call it idle curiosity."

"Well, so much for Blackstock—until the police get wind of him, at all events. They're trying to locate him by cable now; haven't heard of any success that way, however. Naturally . . . but a few days ago Dundas came to the surface."

Coast started violently. "Dundas?"

"Um—um; full confession, exculpating you, insinuating Blackstock. Corroborative details: letters from Blackstock—all that sort of thing. Furthermore, Dundas told us why Blackstock feared Van Loon: Van Loon knew something—some dirty business Blackstock had cooked up in the west. Instantaneous now; tell your sister. Also Dundas took us to the shop where Blackstock bought that gun—value-man recalled the transaction. You remember how we failed to prove the gun his?"

"Of course. Go on about Dundas."

"Well . . . It was Truax's doing; called Dundas on the street one day, somewhere east of Third avenue. The man had been in hiding ever since Blackstock cleared out; he was in a pretty bad way, broke and seedy; claimed Blackstock hadn't sent him a dollar since he disappeared. So Dundas, thrown back upon his pen for a means of livelihood, went all to pieces; couldn't work—had forgotten the trick—or wouldn't; drank up all he could raise by pawing things."

"Truax staked him to a meal and drinks, plenty of drinks; and all that on an empty stomach made him muddled. Confessed he was keeping a conscience—remorse gnawing at his vitals—whatever those are—every thing like that. Then Truax bundled him into a taxi and brought him to my rooms. It was near midnight—got me out of bed; I caught a cold. However . . . I own it without compunction, we worked the poor devil through the third degree; simply browbeat and bullied him until he was ashamed of himself. But the truth oozed out finally, along with tears—whisky tears. We hadn't staked the bottle."

"As I say, in the end Dundas owned up to the whole filthy affair, just as you told it—whimpered about selling his soul to Blackstock, price not disposed. We made him sign a brief confession, but I knew that wouldn't be sufficient, and it was then too late and Dundas too far gone to do more with him. So I called in a central office man I happened to know, and turned Dundas over to him to be taken to a Turkish bath and licked into shape; and it did the trick, with a hearty breakfast and plenty of black coffee for a chaser. He was pretty shaky next morning, but I coaxed him into a taxi and had him at the district attorney's office before he knew what was up. There he wanted to hedge, but his signature to the overnight confession took all the starch out of him, and he went all over it again, with a stenographer taking it down—typewritten deposition—all that sort of thing."

"Meanwhile my friend the detective had ransacked Dundas' lodging—some cheap room just off the Bowery—and found a bundle of letters from Blackstock—mostly written during the trial, when they didn't dare be seen together—hints and orders as to the evidence Dundas was to give. That settled it. Dundas was rushed before a magistrate and jailed and the grand jury was asked to indict him for perjury."

"I know, old boy," Warburton's hand touched his again. "But it's for the best—for your best interests, believe me."

Coast's chin sank dependently upon his breast. "I must go away for a time," he said, or, rather muttered, his accents so soft that Warburton failed to distinguish them—"clear out for a time."

They passed a corner news stand where a man stood with a paper outspread before him, the width of its front sheet occupied by headlines in huge black type, heralding the sensation of the hour.

They who rode might read: GARNETT COAST PARDONED! AT THE ELEVENTH HOUR!!!

Coast shivered as if chilled and sank back, crouching, faint with dismay, in his corner of the tannery. Publicity had him in its relentless clutches.

At two in the afternoon the car stopped before the building on Nassau street in which Warburton had offices. Coast alighted, sick with fear of recognition. The sidewalk throng passed him with blank looks, the elevator boy had a copy of the blatant sheet and a stare for Mr. Warburton's client. In Warburton's private room there was business to distract him; papers to be signed, details to be arranged, letters and telegrams of congratulation, already coming in by the score, to be opened and read. He was called on the telephone—Warburton fully satisfying himself as to the caller's identity before turning the receiver over to Coast. His hope was nipped with disappointment; it was merely Truax calling to offer his felicitations and demand Coast's presence at "a little dinner at the club—just a few of us, all friends of yours; the hour, seven that night. Mechanically Coast promised and rang off. He was unable to refuse; in his heart he knew that he would be unable to

know of."

"You," Warburton assented uneasily, worried by the hard expression that lined Coast's mouth; "looked at that way, yes. . . . Well, we called your trial judge into consultation—the district attorney and I—and between the three of us drew up a petition for your pardon, the district attorney being the first to sign. I got off to Albany by the first train. There wasn't the slightest trouble; the governor granted the pardon without a murmur."

"And here we are."

"And here we are," Coast repeated in a whisper. He was quiet for a time. "You know I can't thank you, old man," he said at length, rounding Warburton's fat little hand rested a moment lightly upon his shoulder. "You don't have to. I feel too good about it myself. Always knew it would come out all right. Never lost faith in you, not for a second, Garrett."

He rattled on, Coast listening by fits and snatches. He heard a little of this matter and that, heard less of more. He replied at times abstractedly.

Katherine Thaxter? Had she heard? All Coast's thoughts focused upon this: he must see her.

There came a pause, made awkward by a constraint in Warburton's manner. Coast glanced at him inquiringly. The little lawyer licked his lips nervously.

"There's one thing," he said, "you won't like, perhaps."

Coast smiled. "I'm not in a mood for fault-finding. What is it?"

"Of course, you know it's desirable to get Blackstock."

"Well?"

"You won't be fully cleared, in the public mind at least, until he's convicted in your stead."

"That's true enough."

"So we're keeping it quiet, for the time being—the reasons for your release, I mean."

"Why? What's the sense of that?" Coast demanded, excitedly. "You said 'exonerated!'"

"So it is, so it will be. But we don't want to scare Blackstock. If he hears that Dundas has confessed, he'll never be found. If we permit him to think, as the public will certainly think, that you are pardoned principally because of your social standing and 'pull' . . . then he won't be so wary. You see? So we're withholding the real reason. Be patient; it will only be for a little while. And in the end it will be exonerated, absolute and unquestionable. Will you stand for this?"

Coast nodded lumberly at the dull haze hanging over the swartling city toward which they raced. "I presume I must," he said warily; "but it's hard—thundering hard. . . . I had hoped . . ."

"I know, old boy," Warburton's hand touched his again. "But it's for the best—for your best interests, believe me."

Katherine Thaxter? Had she heard? All Coast's thoughts focused upon this: he must see her.

There came a pause, made awkward by a constraint in Warburton's manner. Coast glanced at him inquiringly. The little lawyer licked his lips nervously.

"There's one thing," he said, "you won't like, perhaps."

Coast smiled. "I'm not in a mood for fault-finding. What is it?"

"Of course, you know it's desirable to get Blackstock."

"Well?"

"You won't be fully cleared, in the public mind at least, until he's convicted in your stead."

"That's true enough."

"So we're keeping it quiet, for the time being—the reasons for your release, I mean."

"Why? What's the sense of that?" Coast demanded, excitedly. "You said 'exonerated!'"

"So it is, so it will be. But we don't want to scare Blackstock. If he hears that Dundas has confessed, he'll never be found. If we permit him to think, as the public will certainly think, that you are pardoned principally because of your social standing and 'pull' . . . then he won't be so wary. You see? So we're withholding the real reason. Be patient; it will only be for a little while. And in the end it will be exonerated, absolute and unquestionable. Will you stand for this?"

Coast nodded lumberly at the dull haze hanging over the swartling city toward which they raced. "I presume I must," he said warily; "but it's hard—thundering hard. . . . I had hoped . . ."

"I know, old boy," Warburton's hand touched his again. "But it's for the best—for your best interests, believe me."

Coast's chin sank dependently upon his breast. "I must go away for a time," he said, or, rather muttered, his accents so soft that Warburton failed to distinguish them—"clear out for a time."

They passed a corner news stand where a man stood with a paper outspread before him, the width of its front sheet occupied by headlines in huge black type, heralding the sensation of the hour.

They who rode might read: GARNETT COAST PARDONED! AT THE ELEVENTH HOUR!!!

Coast shivered as if chilled and sank back, crouching, faint with dismay, in his corner of the tannery. Publicity had him in its relentless clutches.

At two in the afternoon the car stopped before the building on Nassau street in which Warburton had offices. Coast alighted, sick with fear of recognition. The sidewalk throng passed him with blank looks, the elevator boy had a copy of the blatant sheet and a stare for Mr. Warburton's client. In Warburton's private room there was business to distract him; papers to be signed, details to be arranged, letters and telegrams of congratulation, already coming in by the score, to be opened and read. He was called on the telephone—Warburton fully satisfying himself as to the caller's identity before turning the receiver over to Coast. His hope was nipped with disappointment; it was merely Truax calling to offer his felicitations and demand Coast's presence at "a little dinner at the club—just a few of us, all friends of yours; the hour, seven that night. Mechanically Coast promised and rang off. He was unable to refuse; in his heart he knew that he would be unable to

know of."

"You," Warburton assented uneasily, worried by the hard expression that lined Coast's mouth; "looked at that way, yes. . . . Well, we called your trial judge into consultation—the district attorney and I—and between the three of us drew up a petition for your pardon, the district attorney being the first to sign. I got off to Albany by the first train. There wasn't the slightest trouble; the governor granted the pardon without a murmur."

"And here we are."

"And here we are," Coast repeated in a whisper. He was quiet for a time. "You know I can't thank you, old man," he said at length, rounding Warburton's fat little hand rested a moment lightly upon his shoulder. "You don't have to. I feel too good about it myself. Always knew it would come out all right. Never lost faith in you, not for a second, Garrett."

He rattled on, Coast listening by fits and snatches. He heard a little of this matter and that, heard less of more. He replied at times abstractedly.

Katherine Thaxter? Had she heard? All Coast's thoughts focused upon this: he must see her.

Evellina—I am sorry, but I cannot marry a man of your character. Edgar—What have I ever done? Evellina—I have just learned that you are a director in a life insurance company.

The Leading Man—I've got to kiss your wife in the second act. You won't mind, will you? The Manager—I can stand it if you can.

The Cur—What's your name? The "Duck"—My mistress calls me "Linked Sweetness," but why, I don't know.

THE DENTIST DID IT. The man is really not a king. And small is his renown? But in his hand I know he wears A lovely golden crown.

FACES PARENTAL IRE.
Mrs. Jack Barrymore.
Chicago, Ill.—Mrs. Jack Barrymore, the strong will of Mrs. Barrymore has been the recipient of hundreds of letters of sympathy and condolence. It will be Sidney Barrymore, her father, who died in a stage career, under the name of Katherine Barrymore. It is probable that he will be an important role in the play which is to open here Sunday next, personal appeal to her before she appears in the play. This act on her part comes as a surprise to the friends of the family, who are used to a series of incidents in which she has been the center of attraction.

SOUTHWEST PORTER.
Southwest Porter, Sept. 5.—Jack Adams of Iowa visited his sister, Mrs. John Crall and Mrs. Dell Allen, last week.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everson entertained friends from Albany one day last week.
Mrs. David Van Wart of Evansville spent a number of days last week with Charles Van Wart and family.
Misses Edith and Christine Hanson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Stearns near Cookeville.
Mr. and Mrs. John Crall were guests at the home of William and Kate Wright Sunday.
Mr. and Mrs. Martha Furseth entertained Mr. and Mrs. Anton Bjorkness and family of Janesville and the Misses Inga Anderson and Mabel Johnson of De Forest over Sunday.
Some of the farmers have completed harvesting tobacco.
Mr. and Mrs. Myron Kyes of Evansville spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Wart.
Miss Jennie Olson spent Sunday afternoon with Mabel and Hattie O'Neil.
Mr. and Mrs. A. Bowen entertained company Sunday.

PORTER.
Porter, Sept. 5.—Two high school students, Nora McCarthy and Marion Earle, began their school work this morning.
Eddie Moore visited relatives at Evansville on Sunday.

Man with Remarkable Nerve.
A Pennsylvania man took a walk on a tightrope and wrote a description of his death. He says that while walking off he walked away the time picking a banjo, just like that, in show house uncorrupted by war. Any one who can be uncorrupted while picking a banjo has extraordinary fortitude.

Weather Changed.
It had been raining steadily, and the four-year-old had resigned himself to looking out the window. Suddenly out came the sun. "Well," exclaimed he, "there's the sun! Isn't God a caution?"—The Deliberator.

Lakes in Desert.
The Desert de Carthage, in the Pyrenees, close on 10,000 feet above the sea, contains no less than sixty lakes of varying sizes. These, according to local tradition, were left at the time of the flood. When the waters subsided it appears that Noah and his family landed on the Pay de Prigue, one of the highest peaks in the district. Convincing proof of the truth of this tradition is found in an iron ring to which, the peasants declare, the ark was moored when the landing was effected.

Not in Her Line.
"Aunt Liza, I don't come in to see if you wouldn't like to join the mission band." "Po' de lan' sakes, honey, what yo' come to me for? Don't yo' know I can't even play de mouf orgin!"—Ham's Horn.

England's Royal Academy.
The Royal Academy of England was founded in 1768. The building, in London, in the Renaissance style, was erected by Smirke in 1868-69.

H. B. SMITH PEN CO.
Fountain Pens
$1.69 each.
Fully guaranteed, $3 to $5 values.
